

Come Let Us Worship

He calmed the waters just with His hands,
spoke and made the sun.
He made the firmament, a tent
for mankind to live and play.
God made the earth and all her charms,
mountains, sea and land.
Though this earth will come to naught,
yet His Word will ever stand.

Oh come, let us now worship
and kneel before our Lord.
He, the King of ages,
bring Him all your songs of praise.
Oh come, let us now worship,
Creator of it all,
the heavens and the earth,
for He will soon return.

He is our beacon in darkest nights
and guides us with His Word.
And when we stumble, He is nearby
to help us when we are worn and tired.
There are no other great gods like Him,
so full of might is He.
He came to earth for you and me,
left His Kingdom up in heaven
just for our sake.

Oh come, let us now worship
and kneel before our Lord.
He, the King of ages,
bring Him all your songs of praise.
Oh come, let us now worship,
Creator of it all,
the heavens and the earth,
for He will soon return.

He guards us like a shepherd,
brings us safely home,
sets us free from bondage,
and rescues us from death!

Oh come, let us now worship
and kneel before our Lord.
He, the King of ages,
bring Him all your songs of praise.
Oh come, let us now worship,
Creator of it all,
the heavens and the earth,
for He will soon return.

Oh come, let us now worship
and kneel before our Lord.
He, the King of ages,
bring Him all your songs of praise.
Oh come, let us now worship,
Creator of it all,
(or: the Maker of it all,)
the heavens and the earth,
for He will soon return.

English text:

Adrianus Vermeulen

© Unisong Music Publishers t/a Essence Publishing